Council counters recent hate attacks

Wiyot honored, WWTP work OK'd

ARCATA – A reconfigured Arcata City Council last week pushed through a range of sensitive issues without benefit of Councilmember Brett Watson, who was absent.

Present, however, was newly re-elected Councilmember Alex Stillman, beginning her 17th total year of council service. The veteran councilmember picked up where she left off in 2014, easily gliding into the business at hand.

That business needed all the council's available powers to navigate, as it formed the city's official response to fresh instances of hate attacks on vulnerable portions of the community – the anti-Semitic flyers recently deposited in Northtown, and Wednesday night's disfiguring of a multicultural welcome sign at the Jardin Santuaria/Sanctuary Garden (see story, right).

At the behest of Councilmember Meredith Matthews, the council considered a "Statement of Unity Against An-

ARCATA – Arcata's Jardin Santuario (Sanctuary Garden) at 11th and F streets was vandalized sometime overnight last Wednesday or Thursday, July 21/22.

The garden's sign, which welcomed all in several languages was defaced with a black paint and blood-red letters reading, "AMERICA USA."

An overnight vigil was immediately organized by Centro del Pueblo, Cooperation Humboldt and Eureka NAACP to build solidarity and resistance to the attack.

Sidewalks don't fit McK subdivisions

Daniel Mintz

McKINLEYVILLE – The county wants urban development to include roads with curb, gutter and sidewalk installations but with two recently-approved McKinleyville subdivisions, those requirements were deemed impractical.

At its July 21 meeting, the county's Planning Commission waived the sidewalk requirements for two minor subdivisions in the McKinleyville area.

The first is located on Myers Road at the intersection of Lily Avenue. The commission approved dividing the 1.17-acre parcel into four lots.

The project includes development of a new access road and the applicant, Glen Ford & Sons, LLC, requested an exemption to installing sidewalks and a landscape strip.

County staff didn't support a sidewalk and landscaping exemption, and wanted a wider access road.

Michael Pulley, the project's agent, said "it makes no sense" to install sidewalks on a "dead end road" within the subdivision. He added that a wider roadway would bar creation of developable parcels.

Bob Bronkall of the county's Department of Public Works said there's "merit" in the arguments but the requirements are "consistent with what should be provided in urban areas."

Project too small for sidewalks

Commission Chair Alan Bongio, who is a building contractor, has doubts about universally requiring sidewalks. "From a financial standpoint, it's so hard to make projects go, so anything we can do to cut the costs down I would be supportive of," he said.

Commissioner Brian Mitchell, a McKinleyville resident, has pushed for including sidewalks in subdivisions.

He said it's been "to the detriment to the community that sidewalks haven't been consistently required from the beginning," with the result being a "hodgepodge" of pedestrian access.

But given the limited scale of the subdivision, Mitchell described the exemption

Crumbling roads push tax measure

Daniel Mintz

McKINLEYVILLE – Humboldt County's need for road work has reached critical mass and the Board of Supervisors is considering launching a new voter-approved tax to fund repairs.

At their July 19 meeting, supervisors focused on the condition of roads in the county's unincorporated areas and funding options for improvements.

A ballot measure in the November 2024 election emerged as the mechanism of choice to generate revenue and chip away at an ever-growing $225 million road maintenance backlog.

Supervisor Steve Madrone agendized the discussion. "I doubt there's any disagreement that we all see the need for dedicated funding for roads – our roads are just falling apart," he said.

He added that if voters don't support paying a new tax, they'll pay anyway as county roads deteriorate.

"We're already paying a lot more through car repairs, broken shocks, worn out tires, delays for emergency vehicles and the danger of dodging potholes on the roads," he said.

Madrone suggested a ballot measure that uses 90

Grand Jury responses describe cannabis permit fixes

Daniel Mintz
MAD RIVER UNION

HUMBOLDT – A Grand Jury report on county cannabis permitting noted software problems and a Planning Department response says the glitches are in the process of being fixed.

The report, titled Permitted Eventually, probed the county's cannabis permitting processes and found several problems with its software-based management system.

The Board of Supervisors approved the county's responses to the report during a July 19 meeting. There's agreement with some of the Grand Jury's findings and recommendations.

It was seen as a positive step when the county launched OnTrack, a permit application and management software program in 2009.

An upgrade to a new system, Accela, was done in the fall of 2018.

The system logs permit information, which can be submitted by applicants under the guidance of planning staff. But as noted in the report, Accela can't accept credit card payments.

In its written response, the Planning Department response acknowledges the problem.

"When the Planning and Building Department initially tested the payment module for Accela it worked fine for all credit cards," the department says. "Unfortunately, when it went live, it did not work consistently and had to be turned off."

The issue's been resolved, according to the response, and "the department will be able to accept credit card payment and to complete the build-out of the Accela system to allow applications to be submitted online."

That's expected to be done during the current fiscal year.

The county's Department of Public Works (DPW) also has written responses to the report, agreeing with a recommendation to "build out" the Accela system to process referrals to the department for sign-offs on encroachments, map reviews, fees and other permit-related matters.

But the communications upgrade will "take some time," according to the department's response. The "magnitude of cost" related to coordinating the upgrade with the Planning Department will be calculated and presented to the Board of Supervisors in a future budget request.

Another DPW-related matter is the process for evaluating the condition of roads that serve cannabis farming operations. The current way of doing it is to have permit applicants describe and document their road access in what's known as "self-certification."

That process has long been targeted as inadequate and the Grand Jury recommends that the road evaluations "should be done by public works employees."

While the DPW agrees that the self-certifications "did not always result in an accurate certification," it has "worked in many cases" and there isn't enough DPW staff to "verify all roads."

If road issues come up during permit hearings, the county's Planning Commission has the option of "continuing the public hearing and requesting that the applicant provide an analysis of the road by a civil engineer," the DPW says in its response.

Released last May, the Grand Jury report includes a breakdown of the county's cannabis permitting activity.

As of January 2022, there were 900 pending cannabis permit applications, many of them asking for changes to existing permits or those still under review.

Since September 2016, the county has finished work on 1,117 applications, with 21 denials. A majority – 693 applications – have been withdrawn or canceled.

Grand Jury report correctly calls out deficiencies but fixes are already afoot in some cases.

"Some of the recommendations we're already working towards so we're not implementing what they had identified because we're already moving in that path," said Planning Director John Ford during the supervisors meeting. "It's a little bit nuanced there but we are working hard to try to achieve many of the things that the Grand Jury brought up."

Re-enroll to get Public Safety Power Shutoff (PSPS) alerts

OAKLAND, Calif. — Pacific Gas and Electric Company (PG&E) customers and non-account holders can now sign up for notifications for any address they care about to stay informed about Public Safety Power Shutoffs (PSPS).

High winds can cause tree branches and debris to contact energized lines, damage our equipment and cause wildfires.

As a result, PG&E may need to turn off power during severe weather to prevent wildfires. This is called a PSPS.

It is important to remember that if you signed up to receive these alerts prior to June 2022, you will need to re-enroll for each address, to continue receiving these notifications through June 2023.

To sign up for alerts for any address that is important to you or a loved one, visit pge.com/addressalert.

Alerts are accessible in multiple languages by automated call and text.

Address Alerts might be right for you if:

• You want to know about a PSPS at your home, work, school or other important location

• You are a tenant and do not have a PG&E account

• You need to stay informed about a PSPS affecting a friend or loved one

• Multiple members of your household want to be notified

Customers and non-account holders interested in receiving updates about forecasted PSPS for an address where they do not receive a bill can sign up for any number of address alerts.

Note, PG&E customers will automatically be enrolled to receive PSPS notifications for any home or business they have an account for.

Customers are encouraged to keep their contact information up to date with PG&E so they can be notified if their specific location will be impacted.

Prepare for the unexpected

PG&E understands that losing power disrupts lives and has been working nonstop to make its system safer while also reducing the impact of PSPS events.

PG&E urges all customers to plan ahead of an unexpected emergency.

Below are a few resources that can help you prepare for an outage:

• Safety Action Center: Find tips and guides to staying safe during wildfires or severe weather.

• Kids Emergency Preparedness: Access interactive games, safety tips and quizzes to share emergency resources with children.

• Medical Baseline Program: Sign up for resources available to support those in the disabled and aging populations.

Monkeypox isn't here yet, and so far the vaccine supply is limited

County of Humboldt

HUMBOLDT – There are currently more than 350 monkeypox cases in California, but as of July 22, there are no confirmed cases in Humboldt County.

With recent outbreaks in the U.S., the federal government has allotted specific amounts of the difficult-to-obtain vaccines to states throughout the country. Counties in California such as San Francisco and Santa Clara have seen large enough allocations to hold mass vaccination clinics. Humboldt County's current allocation stands at 20 vaccines. In addition, a small number of vaccines were sent to Humboldt County Public Health for laboratory staff who will be testing monkeypox samples in the lab.

Sofia Pereira, Department of Health & Human Services public health director, said, "With no confirmed cases currently in Humboldt County, our small allocation of vaccines will be used in case of a local outbreak."

According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC), vaccinating people who have had direct contact with someone with a confirmed case of monkeypox within four days of exposure can help prevent onset and further spread of the disease.

She said the local health jurisdictions across the state and the California Department of Public Health are currently petitioning the CDC for more vaccine.

Monkeypox is a rare zoonotic infection caused by the monkeypox virus, which is in the same family as smallpox, but less severe than smallpox.

Monkeypox is endemic to many Central and West African countries, however, there have been recent cases of monkeypox reported in non-endemic countries including the U.S., Canada and the U.K., as well as other parts of Europe and Australia.

The monkeypox virus is spread to humans from infected humans, animals and materials contaminated with the virus. Although the risk to the general U.S. population is low, the following tips can help keep you safe:

- Practice good hand hygiene
- Always talk to your intimate partner/s about any recent illness, and be aware of new or unexplained sores or rashes on your body or your partner's body, including on the mouth, genitals and anus
- Avoid intimate contact, including sex, with people with symptoms like sores or rashes
- Avoid contact with infected animals and materials contaminated with the virus
- Infected people should isolate until their symptoms, including rash, have gone away completely
- Use appropriate personal protective equipment (PPE) like a mask, gown and gloves when caring for people with symptoms.

To learn more about prevention steps, visit the CDC at cdc.gov/poxvirus/monkeypox/prevention.html.

ti-Semitic Messages and all Forms of Hate Speech."

Matthews said the statement was initially composed in response to the anti-Semitic flyers, but that it serves as a blanket response to all forms of hate. "I also want to include our BIPOC community, our LGBTQ community – I am united with you against all forms of hate."

She cited the recent appropriation of the yellow Jewish Badge by those opposed to COVID vaccination, who have taken to adorning themselves with by way of casting themselves as victims.

Speaking haltingly to control her emotions, Matthews said her synagogue has had to ask for police protection and cease group services out of safety concerns. She said it was "very distressing that people can't worship freely because they're scared."

Citizen Dana Quillman, an anti-vaccinationist and occasional City Council candidate, spoke during public comment on the statement. She described herself as "A defender of freedom of speech" and said regulating hate speech is problematic – though no regulation has been proposed.

Quillman mentioned a rally held last fall at St Joseph Hospital by "health freedom advocates" – which included her husband, former Councilmember Paul Pitino – and doubled down on the comparisons of her unvaccinated cohorts to Jews forced to wear the Jewish Badge during the Nazi era and World War II. "The inspiration to both make the buttons and to wear them came from being treated in similar ways to how Jews were treated in early stages of the Holocaust, being alienated, discriminated against, forced to lose their employment, feared and treated as second-class citizens and worse."

UNITED A city-created sign that local businesses and residents may display. VIA CITY OF ARCATA

She said members of her movement have been unfairly labeled conspiracy theorists but "have done our research" and uncovered information that's been censored, and that "everyone else is in the dark."

Quillman has written in the Union that the "power brokers of the world" are engineering "The Great Reset" to abrogate human rights and subdue the populace via use of 5G cell phone technology and COVID-19 vaccination.

"We in the health freedom movement do not understand how everyone else cannot see what is happening," Quillman said. "Being offended by other people's words is a real problem," she said. "We all need to have a thick skin."

She passed out a copy of a Sept. 22, 2022 Union news story on Matthews' initial objections to the Pitino's actions at the protest rally. "I consider this slander," she said. "I consider this hate speech." But she went on to defend the reporting it as an example of freedom of speech.

"If you're going to have a statement about this, could you please include the unvaccinated? Because we have been more discriminated and persecuted in the last year and a half than any other group. And if you don't do that, your statement is hypocritical."

The councilmembers present went on to unanimously approve the statement. Read it at madriverunion.com.

The council also approved a land acknowledgment "that recognizes and respects Native American peoples as traditional stewards of the land, and the enduring relationship between Native American peoples and their traditional lands."

The statement, approved by the Wiyot Tribal Council, acknowledges that Arcata is located on unceded ancestral Wiyot land, and is intended to "aid in dismantling the legacy narratives of settler colonialism." Read the acknowledgment at madriverunion.com.

The council also approved a $101,577.50 contract to Golden Harvest, Inc. for installation of a new Ultraviolet (UV) Disinfection Equipment System at the Wastewater Treatment Plant (WWTP) as part of the Phase I upgrades. Assistant City Manager Danielle Allred called it "one of the first major milestones" in upgrading the plant.

requests as reasonable. "It seems like in this case we have to make a trade-off, with having the ability to do the project," he said.

Commissioners unanimously approved the subdivision and the exemption requests, with Mitchell specifying a finding that the exemptions are unique "to the particulars of this site."

Next up was a permit hearing for subdividing a 1.49-acre parcel on Boiler Avenue about a half-mile from the intersection of Murray Road.

The parcel already has a single family home on it and the subdivision will facilitate development of second residences.

The applicant, Roshawn Beere, had at first asked for exemptions to installing frontage sidewalks and paving a portion of Bolier Avenue, going south from Murray Road.

But in a compromise proposal, Beere offered to pave 200 feet of Bolier Ave. to a width of 20 feet. A staff counter-proposal asked for 400 feet of paving to a width of 10 feet.

Jesse Buffington, the agent for Beere, said the general area of the subdivision has development potential for about 30 more lots and he acknowledged that "to get started, someone needs to be the first one to pave."

He said paving 400 feet of Bolier Avenue "makes good sense" but installing sidewalks would be "out of character with the neighborhood" and would also make the project financially unsound.

Commissioners questioned the need for paving, with Bongio saying by agreeing to it, Beere is "giving too much."

Commissioner Peggy O'Neill, a McKinleyville resident, said it makes more sense to pave Boiler at a 20-foot width in case of future development but given the small scale of the subdivision, "I would err on the side of saying they shouldn't have to do anything."

Commissioners unanimously voted to approve the subdivision, including paving the 200-foot stretch of Boiler Avenue at a 20-foot width, with no sidewalks.

Scotty – a happy guy with a positive perspective

This week the shelter is quite full with both male dogs and cats. The kitty numbers are coming down though there are still plenty of cats and kittens to choose from. The dog population is being affected by incoming dogs from several different situations – three dogs from an owner who died, four from an arrest – and soon there aren't many available kennels.

How can you help? Adopting a shelter pet is the best of course, but spreading the word about our adoptable animals helps too. Or maybe you would be willing to consider fostering a dog through their heartworm treatment? Redwood Pals Rescue also has several dogs that would benefit from a foster outside of the shelter. You can always contact us at redwoodpalsrescue@gmail.com for more information about fostering

At this writing there are three puppies available at the shelter. There is one male cattle dog, one male shepherd mix, and one male Aussie mix. They are all about three to four months old, extremely cute and good-natured!

Adoptions are on a first come, first served basis so best to check 24PetConnect.com to see who is currently available.

It can be hard for our big dogs to compete with a cute little puppy but there are definitely some advantages to considering the adult dogs. Adult dogs tend to be housebroken, have a little training under their belts and have lost those needle-like baby teeth! They are more likely to be socialized and familiar with a leash as well. We've got plenty of great adult dogs to choose from! Consider meeting a few dogs when you come to the shelter so that you can weigh out your options.

Scotty here is a charmer! This big-headed American Bulldog mix with the great smile seems to want to be everyone's friend. He is curious about the world and will step off the path and lie down to wait and see who's coming along behind him. In the play yard Scotty is a fan of the wading pool and enjoys taking a break there on a warm day. He likes to take a few laps around the perimeter of the yard and then hop back into the pool!

Scotty has several walking buddies among the other dogs and is quite respectful to the other dogs when out for a stroll. The volunteers have been pleasantly surprised that he is so easy to leash up and is such a nice walking companion.

This happy boy loves to hang out with his human friends. He loves to get back scratches or a treat in exchange for a nice sit or other request. He's not above reminding you where the treats are kept if he thinks you might have forgotten! Scotty is a cheerful companion. He'd do well with a doggy friend and might even be a candidate for a home with cats.

He's about two years old, neutered, microchipped, and current on his vaccinations. Scotty weighs about 65 pounds. He is available through the Humboldt County Animal Shelter. Call (707) 840-9132 for more information or to make an appointment to meet Scotty.

Roads | 'Asphalt burden' requires costly maintenance

percent of tax revenue for roads, five percent for trails and five percent for county parks.

The county has previously tried – and failed – to gain voter support for a road tax ballot measure. That was years ago and now things are worse, as each passing year adds an estimated $10 million to the county's road work backlog.

In past presentations, Public Works Director Tom Mattson told supervisors the county's road network was approaching cliff's edge. This time he told supervisors county roads have gone over the edge.

"We're at the point where we have a huge number of roads that require total reconstruction, which is the most expensive way to try to maintain your road system," Mattson said. "We're over the cliff's edge on the cost to repair our roads because they've deteriorated so far."

Federal funding focuses on population centers and state funding like that from the SB 1 legislative package offers limited support. Mattson said SB 1 ensures a statewide total of $5 billion in annual funding and Humboldt gets about $5 million of it.

The Measure Z public safety tax has included road improvement funding but Mattson said it doesn't support the "long-term planning" needed for comprehensive improvements and steady maintenance.

While supervisors agreed that road maintenance is important, Supervisor Mike Wilson suggested there's more to road improvement than repaving.

He emphasized the importance of road design and making travel safe for people who aren't in vehicles.

"We've been learning more and more that while we feel like we're improving roads, people drive faster and it doesn't actually make them safer," Wilson said. "Accident rates don't go down, necessarily – it depends on road design and not just how smooth the road is."

He added that decommissioning some roads and "lessening our asphalt burden" should also be considered.

There was some pushback from Supervisor Rex Bohn, who asked Wilson, "Can you share some of that data that good roads cause accidents, 'cause I can't find anything."

The two supervisors expressed frustration with each other but Wilson's comments got back-up during a public comment period, from Colin Fiske of the Coalition for Responsible Transportation Priorities (CRTP) group.

He said his group could support a ballot measure that includes funding for public transit and safety-oriented design.

Also during public comment, Kent Sawatzky of the Humboldt Taxpayers League supported doing a ballot measure for roads and advised putting one up for a vote as soon as possible.

Supervisors directed county staff to return with an analysis of ballot measure potential and other options for road improvement funding.

Also on the table will be hiring a grant writing specialist, forming a supervisors committee on road funding and using more Measure Z public safety tax revenue for short term repair projects.

Cal Poly | Visuals of new housing coming next month

The new, still vague information was revealed a scoping meeting on its Craftsman Mall Student Housing Project last Wednesday, July 20. Hosted by Michael Fisher, associate vice president for Facilities Management, the online meeting was required as part of the project's CEQA (California Environmental Quality Act) process.

Fisher offered a project summary for the student housing project at the Craftsman Mall site. It is now set for 1,050 beds in apartment-style units for undergraduate and grad students.

Accessory and support facilities will include a café and retail space, gymnasium, lounge and study spaces. Exterior features will include green spaces, stormwater retention and detention, parking and safety lighting. Connectivity with the Annie & Mart Trail is in the works.

Environmental consultant Chris Mundhenk of Ascent Environmental outlined the CEQA process, which includes an evaluation, impact reduction measures, plus public involvement and disclosure. With substantial impacts – a substantial and adverse change to the environment – an EIR is required, and following scoping, that document will be drafted and posted for public review and review by the CSU Board of Trustees.

The EIR will cover numerous aspects of the project, from energy use to noise, air quality, transportation, services, utilities and other impacts. The university is coordinating with the City of Arcata on infrastructure.

Those wishing to offer comments may do so through today, July 27, by emailing Dierdre.Clem@humboldt.edu with "Student Housing Project NOP Scoping Comment" in the subject line and the physical address of the commenter in the email.

Fisher said the project is in its formative stages and is "still malleable," and that specifics and visualizations of the project aren't yet available. He said the visuals and more details will be posted online "very soon" and will provide "a lot more to chew on."

Fisher said the project's density is being focused on the north and east sides of the Craftsman mall site, as far as possible from the homes on Maple Lane, Stromberg Avenue and Westwood Village, and Eye Street. Pedestrian circulation and linkage are being studied for safety and access.

The project's larger role as part of the overall Northern Humboldt housing picture will be further discussed as planning proceeds.

Fisher said CPH will collaborate with Arcata and Humboldt County on the "greater vision" with more "side by side" public fora with local governments, taking place on and off campus.

Primary vehicular access to the project will be via St. Louis Road. Colin Fiske of the Coalition for Responsible Transportation Priorities (CRTP), a Sunset-area resident, said his group supports the project "in concept" due to its walkable location. He urged the university to maximize housing and de-emphasize parking, as that is a "driver of demand rather than a response to it."

Maple Lane resident Lisa Kinneman said the single vehicular egress/ingress route "scares me" in terms of emergency access. She also asked about a southern walkway path next to her home that had been part of the defunct The Village project.

Fisher said there no westward connectivity is planned, and that planning is attempting to "segregate" the project from those areas. Emergency access will be via Eye Street and St. Louis Road, but studies are still proceeding.

Referring to the old Village building designs, Daniel Duncan of Union Street asked about how the new project will accommodate the increased student population. "We have gone a different direction to be more dynamic and work with the site and the community to focus our density towards the northwest, to the St. Louis Road area away from the communities," Fisher said.

With conceptual visualizations to be unveiled in August, Fisher revealed that the old four-building Village design has been abandoned in favor of "more consolidated – not a high rise by any means... but a building that is spread out and interconnected in different ways. A better design than what was there before, I'll say that."

He said comments will be welcome once the draft designs are revealed next month.

Fisher sad the housing situation in Arcata and surrounding areas is "pretty dire" which drove the increase in the project's population. "What we knew we have to do with this project site is to maximize it to the best of our abilities" within constraints of site capacity and budget.

"Jumping from 850 to 1,050 was a function of what the site could handle and how much budget we actually had to put to put towards it," Fisher said, and that delivering safe housing quickly within those limits is the priority.

The meeting featured some nomenclature quirks. Even Fisher referred to Cal Poly as "HSU" at one point – a term still widely used as the populace slowly internalizes the new CPH paradigm.

Fisher also referred to the site as the "Craftsman's Mall," rather than the "Craftsman Mall," as it had been newly designated in the university's recent public announcements.

Some folks at the ballpark call Tamara Clohessy "Superfan Tam" and some call her the "Crabs Queen."

Either one works for her as Tam is everywhere at almost every game, helping the staff, chalking the lineup on the board, giving out prizes, and making sure everyone is having a great time.

A little girl from McKinleyville wanted to share one of her collection of crowns and tiaras with Tam. So she brought a purple one to the game and now Tam wears it proudly, a gift from Adrena Barnett of McKinleyville.

Patti Wade, Adrena's "Grandma-Mom" explained. 'I knew Tam like purple and that she wanted to be the queen. Adrena likes to share so we brought it to the game last week but Tam wasn't here."

They left the crown for Tam but came back last Saturday to meet up with her.

No-hitter highlights Crabs winning week

Richard LaPreziosa
Mad River Union

ARCATA – "Get ahead early, be efficient." That's Nick Perryman's plainly stated secret for attaining the vaunted distinction for a pitcher, the no-hitter.

Not only were no runs surrendered to the Fairfield Indians on Saturday night, but they couldn't manage to get a hit off Perryman, as he commanded the pitcher's mound for five innings before leaving the game due to his being on a pitch count.

I imagine Fairfield must have felt optimistic to see Eureka native, and St. Bernard's graduate, Garrison Finck on the mound to start the sixth inning. Sure, the Indians were losing 15-0, but 12 of those runs were given up by their starting pitcher, including three (yes three!) doubles in two (yes two!) innings by Crabs infielder Nick Leehey. But since making a change they had stopped the bleeding and managed to hold the mighty Crabs to just three runs.

But Finck would prove to be just as ungiving as his predecessor, using his fastball, and cutter, (a fastball with movement), over the last three innings to keep Fairfield runless, and hitless for a final score of 15-0.

"Something to remember for a while for sure," Finck would say Sunday afternoon after the Crabs beat Fairfield again for a three-game sweep.

"Yesterday was awesome seeing a no hitter like that." Manager Robin Guiver said after Sunday's win. "Permian was throwing really well, and he got his pitch count up so he couldn't go the whole game."

"Garrison Finck gets a lot of credit," Guiver continued. "He came in and just pounded the strike zone. I want to make sure he gets his just do."

One thing is for sure, along with Caleb Ruiz, Humboldt Crabs pitching has been terrific this year.

"He was a little tired today," Guiver would say about Ruiz. "But he grinded through and gave us five innings and got out of there with the lead."

And so besides losing a close one to the Medford Rogues, a loss they would avenge on Thursday night it was another winning week for the Crabs who host Seals Baseball Friday through Sunday, and the Fresno A's for two games starting Tuesday night. After that the Crabs finish the season against the Sacramento Yankees, so be sure to get your tickets and relish the summer at the Arcata Ball Park, watching the Crabs.

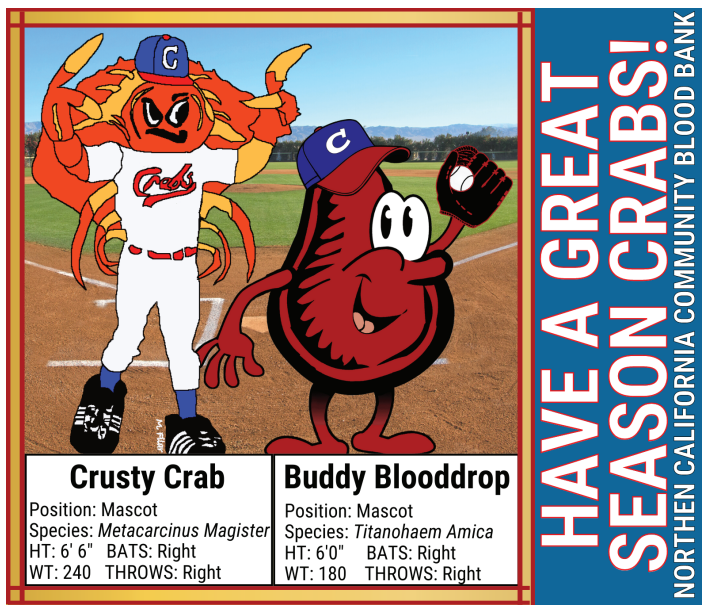

Sons and Daughters of Italy Night July 29

MANGIA The Crabs are all about Italian heritage. Just look at all those names in Crabs history: Bonomini, Barsuglia, Pastori, and Papini. No wonder the Sons and Daughters of Italy want to celebrate with Italian beer, music, treats, Chianti, and Italian flags on Friday night, July 29. Check out their stand by the third baseline and pick up a membership application while you're there. T-shirts will also be on sale. Gina Luzzi of Arcata said, "The club provides polenta feeds several times a year and sponsors events for veterans such as the Stand Down and a yearly luncheon for women veterans."

Oh! the joy of Westhaven blackberry pie

Janine Volkmar
MAD RIVER UNION

WESTHAVEN – Pie lovers are rejoicing as it's that time of year. The Westhaven Blackberry Festival is always the last Sunday in July.

And, as always, pie aficionados know to get there early!

This year's festival is the 62nd annual on Sunday, July 31 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Sixth Avenue in Westhaven. It's all to raise funds for the awesome Westhaven Volunteer Fire Department.

There will be live music, more than 25 crafts booths, activities for the kids, a chance to talk to volunteer firefighters, tours, sandwiches, sides, and beverages on sale and of course pie, pie, pie.

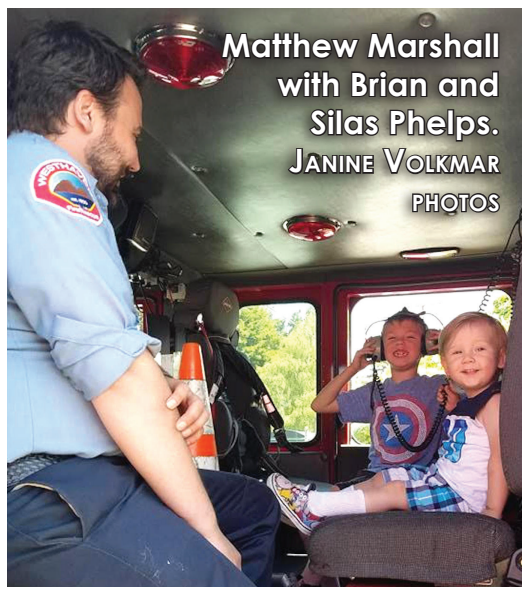

Craft vendors are still signing up according to organizer Stacie Marshall. "We've been getting more calls every day," she said.

Food offerings this year include pulled pork sandwiches, veggie dogs, veggie chili, coleslaw, potato salad and sodas. Moonstone Crossing wines, Mad River Brewing beers, and mimosas will be on sale as well.

The Westhaven pie makers have been busy since January and have made 897 blackberry pies, 358 jars of blackberry jam, and 198 jars of blackberry jelly. They will be selling pie by the slice, pie à la mode, blackberry sundaes, jams and jellies, and whole pies, both frozen and baked. Those women (and one man) have outdone themselves this year.

Live music includes Lisa O'Keefe, Two Guys with Guitars, Rubberneck Rainbow and Moonstone Heights.

There is no admission charge but remember to buy a supporter T-shirt to help the Fire Department even more.

Parking can be problematic so carpool and/or go early. There's a county bus stop across the street. Please leave your dog at home.

The Westhaven Volunteer Fire Department was formed in 1950 to meet the fire and medical needs of the greater Westhaven community which includes more than 800 properties and 450 homes.

These hardworking volunteers take their own time to attend all the up-to-date trainings. They often respond to calls for help with accidents on the nearby 101 freeway as well as medical calls in the area.

The Blackberry Festival is their major fundraiser for the year so enjoy pie and help fund them at the same time.

"I really want another four years to continue the trajectory that I've already started," she said. "I don't take it lightly." COMMUNITY RALLIES TO SUPPORT SANCTUARY GARDEN, IMMIGRANTS AGAINST HATE

Fight fear and hate by volunteering and showing solidarity at the garden

ARCATA, CALIF. (July 21, 2022) – The Jardin Santuario (Sanctuary Garden) at the corner of 11th and F Streets in Arcata is the latest target in a wave of increasing hate speech and hate crimes in our community. Sometime during the night of Wednesday, July 20, vandals defaced the Jardin's welcome sign, spray painting it black with the words "AMERICA USA" in red.

The defacement of the Jardin's welcome sign is not only a crime, it also sends a threatening message to valued members of our community. Centro del Pueblo, Cooperation Humboldt and the Eureka NAACP stand united in staunch defense of our Indigenous immigrant neighbors and demand that the perpetrator of this crime be brought to light to face the consequences of their actions.

We urge anyone with knowledge of this crime to contact the Arcata Police Department, which is investigating this vandalism as a hate crime.

A vigil to support immigrants – and oppose hate in all its forms – took place Thursday night through Friday. Community members were invited to visit the garden and bring flowers and notes of support and to share in the peace that the garden provides. The defaced sign was be left up during this time so that all could witness this act firsthand.

Latinx community members shared their emotions upon seeing the defaced sign. "We are in hope of your support, join us to end the racist violence that aims to install the culture of fear and intimidation in a Sanctuary peaceful space," stated Alma, an Arcata neighbor originally from Mexico.

Others shared: "It's time to take concrete actions, to be in permanent campaign against racial violence, to gather strength as individuals and organizations"; "We need the support of the community in the middle of this violent attack. This is racism, I feel it personally as a Latinx community member and volunteer of the garden"; "This is an open sign of racism, in a garden where we gathered as equals, those who hate need to know us and know more of our culture, to respect our spaces."

It bears mentioning that Wednesday night the Arcata City Council passed a "Statement of Unity Against Anti-Semitic Messages and all Forms of Hate Speech," in which they state that "the Arcata City Council and our community soundly reject and condemn ANY hate filled messages and any inference to discrimination of any kind to any person or group... The Arcata City Council stands united in our zero-tolerance position against all forms of hate speech in our city... The Arcata Police Department and Humboldt County Sheriff recognize the impact of hate incidents and stands with the council and the community united against hate."

The Jardin was established in early 2021 as a sanctuary garden and a safe space for immigrants. Since that time Centro del Pueblo staff and volunteers have worked tirelessly to transform a neglected and under-utilized space to a vibrant, beautiful and productive garden that provides food and connection to nature and community to dozens of local families.

The love and care they have poured into this space is evident in every corner of the garden and it serves as an inspiration to others for how to care for one another in community. Those who wish to demonstrate meaningful solidarity over the longer term are invited to volunteer at the Jardin on Wednesdays from 3 to 6 p.m. and Saturdays from 10: a.m. to noon. All are welcome.

Que el Jardín del Santuario sea verdaderamente un santuario ahora y siempre

Queridos amigos, vecinos y miembros de la comunidad,

Me siento profundamente triste y enojada sobre la odiosa desfiguración del cartel de bienvenida en el jardín del santuario. Soy una de las muchas personas blancas que están molestas por esta acción ofensiva, presumiblemente cometido por otra persona blanca.

Me encanta este Jardin. He asistido a varios encuentros donde se hacen amistades y se comparten expresiones creativas a través del canto, la poesía, el arte, la palabra.

Es mi oración que el jardín pueda continuar siendo un lugar donde todos los miembros de la comunidad, especialmente los amigos y vecinos latinos pueden reunirse de manera segura para cultivar alimentos saludables.

❖ CARTA DE LA SEMANA

Que el Jardín del Santuario sea verdaderamente un santuario ahora y siempre.

Con profundo respeto y amabilidad,
Linda Goff Evans

Dear friends, neighbors, community,

I am deeply saddened and maddened by the hateful defacing of the welcome sign at the Sanctuary Garden in Arcata. I am one of many white people who are upset about this offensive action, presumably committed by another white person.

I love this garden and have attended several gatherings where friendships are made and creative expressions are shared through song, poetry, art, words.

It is my prayer that the garden can continue to be a place where all community members, and especially Latinx friends and neighbors are safely able to gather for growing healthy foods.

May the Sanctuary Garden truly be a sanctuary now and always.

With deep respect and loving kindness,
Linda Goff Evans

Hateful acts are proven precursors to catastrophe

If you aren't a person of color, a Jew, a woman, LGBTQI+, a handicapped person or any of the other segments of the populace routinely subjected to abuse, you likely haven't internalized how different and more difficult it is going about everyday life without privilege.

❖ EDITORIAL

From microaggressions to murder and everything in between including discrimination, harassment, vandalism and cultural appropriation, all are near-daily occurrences.

Victims and allies are pushing back as never before at recent provocations, and it's now or never to meet the challenge of rising ultra-nationalism. We've seen exactly where that leads.

Evidence of the problem is no farther than your pleasant Sunset-area driveway, where anti-Semitic flyers cropped up one recent morning. Or the Sanctuary Garden at 11th and F streets, where a beautiful sign was vandalized with paint. You owe it to yourself to see this thing in person, because it shows you how real and how local the problem is.

The confused soul who wrote "AMERICA USA" on the sign doesn't understand the first thing about America/USA. It isn't just another country with a flag and weaponry. America's premise, which it is still trying to fulfill, is to serve as a refuge for the oppressed.

Our differing cultures are to be treasured and nurtured, as they have deeply enriched the country and continue to do so. The self-styled patriot who abused the nation's name on the sign didn't promote their country, they profaned it.

If these people really care about America, they should want it to have benefit of all of its people's contributions.

While a wrecked sign and some downloaded hate flyers might seem dismissable, history tells us they set the stage for much worse.

When those forms of hate aren't addressed, harassment becomes normalized. It then intensifies, violence follows, and thence ensues officially sanctioned discrimination and attempts at extermination.

Preposterous? It's happened right here, on the very ground we walk on every day. Early Humboldt newspapers were, with notable exceptions, mostly silent and even encouraging of the brutality in the settlement era.

It's up to all of us to recognize all the corrosive, anti-human "isms" when we see them, and nonviolently push back with everything we have.

Cultural appropriation

Cultural appropriation has rarely been uglier and more appalling than the use of the yellow Stars of David – the infamous Jewish Badge – by anti-vaccinationists, to liken themselves to Holocaust victims.

While it has become near-mandatory to position one's self as a victim these days (see virtually any public comment portion of City Council meetings for examples), there is no equivalency between these dizzy dilettantes and the millions of historic victims of anti-Semitism.

The "censorship" is really a matter of basic ethical standards, and a simple one. Responsible publications don't promote conspiracy theories and medical misinformation – and that is our freedom of speech.

We well know the lessons of false balance and false equivalence, and don't intend to repeat them. If a publication isn't going to print cigarette ads, why would it promote lethally misleading medical misinformation? It's not like cigarettes can kill you any deader than COVID.

While COVID has been going strong for two years – aided and abetted by the ignorant unvaccinated – no one has rounded up these scientifically illiterate individuals and put them in camps. No one has stopped anti-vax zealots from saying whatever they want in public, whether at council meetings, petitioning on the Plaza or before audiences of billions online.

So why are they whinging on about censorship?

The artificial victimhood, of course. It's almost as though there's a competition to make the most outrageous and offensive statements, reap the blowback and then wail about being shamed.

Anyway, it's not like that kind

DON'T KNOW MUCH ABOUT HISTORY Former Arcata City Councilmember Paul Pitino affixed the yellow Jewish Badge to his anti-vaccination T-shirt at an Aug. 22, 2021 protest at Eureka's St. Joseph Hospital, likening himself to the children at left. Pitino's reasoning: "Truthfully, society is marking us anyway. I'm being shamed and blamed and marked so fuck it, I'll mark myself." As the protesters brandished placards, laughed and wore the culturally appropriated Holocaust symbol, exhausted medical personnel inside the hospital put themselves and their families at risk to save the lives of disproportionately non-vaccinated COVID patients. Photo by Ryan Hutson | Redheaded Blackbelt of received wisdom isn't ubiquitous on the Internet for those shopping for a ready-made belief system, one complete with heroes, villains, slogans, even music and fashions (see photo, above).

As of Friday night, there were 1,023,263 American deaths from COVID. And there are 3 million immune-compromised Americans, not that the preening, self-absorbed anti-vaccinationists show any concern for them.

Any discrimination – such as the unvaxxed and unmasked being refused entry to restaurants, is entirely self-inflicted. Biological reality doesn't care about trendy conspiracy clubs. Letting the virus spread without taking simple, free countermeasures is what encourages the evolution of the variants that now literally plague us.

What these people cannot get through their heads is that what they call discrimination are science-based measures to protect the vulnerable from their wayward mythology.

And unlike the millions forced to wear the star and who wound up going up chimneys, no one has made these Internet-bedazzled individuals wear a yellow star. Doing so reduces that powerful symbol of inhumanity to a fashion accoutrement with which those caught up in conspiracy theories can impress each other.

You don't see anti-vaxxers playing dress-up as other of history's genocide victims to signify their martyrdom, such as those who were killed en masse locally or in the racist Old South. Let's imagine how that would go over.

Why, then, is it permissible to culturally appropriate one of the Jewish peoples' most anguish-inducing symbols, especially when there are still Holocaust survivors among us? Add those survivors and their families to the list of vulnerable people trampled by vaccine deniers. You can well argue that this is casual, flippant anti-Semitism. The Ugly 'Murican is no myth.

As observed earlier, it is up to all of us to call out this kind of cultural vandalism and violence with everything we have. The frenzied fringers acted provocatively for the attention, and here it is.

Colonizing Arcata

If you go to a restaurant and order a sumptuous but healthful meal of salmon, piles of fresh vegetables, rice, and salad, enjoyed with a glass of wine and topped by a lovely dessert, your net physical and spiritual gains will be substantial. The restaurant and the local economy will also benefit. You will have fed yourself and your community in positive ways.

But if, when you finish that meal, you move to another table and order the same food, wine, and dessert all over again, and consume that as well, you will be sick. The restaurant will make more money, but only at the expense of the health of its patrons and therefore of the entire community. In the end it will be a net loss all around.

The current expansion of Cal Poly Humboldt is looming as if that second meal. Recently the state secretly secured rights to purchase land that at the time was in escrow to the Life Plan Humboldt retirement community. No one knows the state's intention at that sprawling locale — which is one of the major issues here. No one from the University has hosted a town hall or placed notices in local media or even consulted with city officials (or so they say) in order to daylight the state's massive expansion plans so that people who actually live here will know what's going on. This is called imperialism.

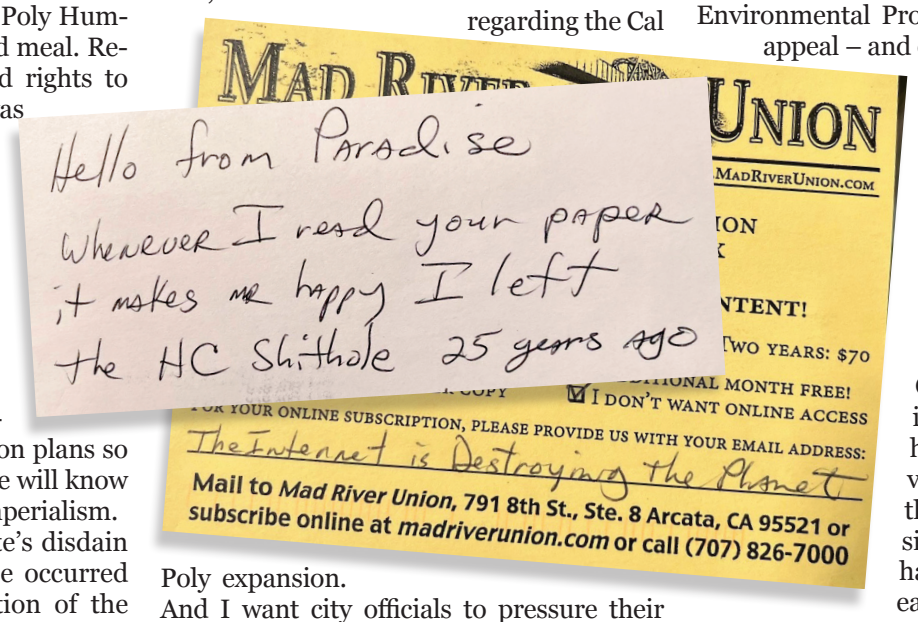

A glaring example of the state's disdain for the concerns of local people occurred simultaneous with the usurpation of the retirement community. This involved the shafting of neighbors near the Craftsman Mall, where Cal Poly Humboldt says it will increase student housing density well beyond the 800 beds that had already been rejected by the City of Arcata.

What other lovely surprises does the state have in store?

Many of us live in Arcata in part because we appreciate the intellectual, cultural, and economic benefits that the university brings to our community. I have lectured several times at Cal Poly Humboldt, and I deeply appreciate the pedagogical give and take—the energetic young minds, and the professors and staff, who add a vibrancy to the entire city. Yet today we're seeing the state university system expanding rapidly and forcefully, and with zero engagement from the public. As the state now dons a bib for that second meal, it's easy to see Arcata, in 10 years, spending a lot of time on the proverbial toilet.

There's a lot of shrugging complacency over the idea that the City of Arcata has no power over the state's near-authoritarian expansion plans in our small community. This is a myth. Any state project of substance requires legal and environmental review. A municipality, especially an impacted city, has significant standing in these processes. I expect my city government to critically review and comment on state projects with the specific intent of protecting Arcata from the university's overreach.

I also expect Arcata officials to share with community members any and all information, and communications with and actions regarding the Cal Poly expansion.

And I want city officials to pressure their state colleagues to provide full disclosure of their plans for our community, and to keep us informed in real time.

There is no doubt that the University's expansion threatens our community with several net negatives: gridlock, housing crises including astronomical costs, flights of longtime local residents, and impacts to necessary facilities such as retirement communities, emergency medical care, firefighting, water and sewer, and the like.

I expect my city government to take any and all action to stop the state for doing such irreparable harm. This would include litigation.

I also expect the business community to avoid being blinkered by dollar signs. We all want Arcata to enjoy a strong local economy. Most of us truly appreciate the many benefits that the college currently brings, and has always contributed to Arcata. Yet in its current expansion, and now with these two dramatic salvos that signal future damages to Arcata's quality of life, it becomes clear that the state sees Arcata as a colony.

Nordic not so credible

Your July 21 article on Nordic Aquafarms' leadership change says Nordic has received all permits for its Belfast, Maine industrial fish farm, but the article fails to mention that Nordic's crucial Maine Department of Environmental Protection permit is under appeal – and ownership of land that is key to Nordic's Belfast project is under court appeal. In other words, after almost five years of chasing its Maine project, Nordic is still well short of starting construction.

In the July 21 article, incoming Nordic CEO Brenda Chandler is quoted saying Nordic has "worked on some very large projects on the East Coast." This is simply not true. Nordic has worked on only one east-coast project, that of Belfast, Maine, and that work has not included so much as placing one shovel into the ground. Hardly a promising, reassuring or impressive record. In fact, it's a rather miserable record, and enough to send any wise investor fleeing for the exit.

In the article Chandler is also quoted saying Nordic will continue to pursue its East Coast "projects" with an "employee on the ground." One employee? For a project of $500 million dollars? In pre-pandemic dollars? No wonder Nordic is fully four years and eight months behind in Maine.

If your local Board of Supervisor is looking to Nordic Aquafarms for reassurance of Nordic's true viability and continuity, it is looking in the wrong place.

The honesty experiment

This Easter, the first bouquets of organic farm grown flowers were offered for sale from my "honesty stand" on Foster Road, Lenore's Garden. Would anyone buy flowers from a stand on the road? Would rain and wind ruin them? I had stunning Bearded Iris for sale and no one else has that, so I gave it a try.

At first I sold them from buckets, but buckets were not pretty and when someone paid me extra and took a bucket, I realized people wanted water too. Thus, the dollar store glass vases were a step up. They keep me honest too, as you can easily see if the water is fresh and stems are freshly trimmed. The bouquets in glass vases (returnable for credit) have the price on a tag printed with instructions for how to keep flowers fresh longer.

We installed a locked box that I empty often and a Venmo account. So it is hard to take money, but easy to take flowers. I watched as two teens grabbed two small jars of flowers and I couldn't really think of anything too horrible about it. My flowers were irresistible? They wanted to impress someone with a gift? I thanked them for buying the flowers while knowing they didn't pay. Maybe they left the little gifts on the bench later?

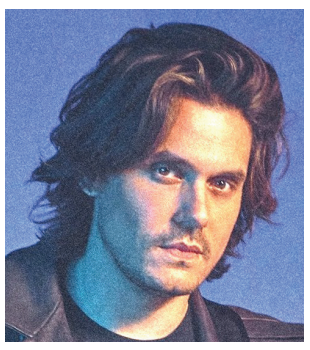

Now I am in love with flower-loving people. People are paying for almost everything and sometimes leaving gifts or tips or thank you notes. It is so successful; I am in awe of folks.

Most people leave cash in the correct amount but once it was $13 and the next day $7 totaling the right amount. Someone pays with cash and used florists vases and is a repeat customer. Yesterday a big polished stone and a bent quarter arrived. Also $1.90 in change so they paid for the vase and traded for the flowers? It has made checking the stand such a treat as I never know what I will find. Did the "thanks for sharing your beautiful flowers" note come with the $20 bill? But two vases were gone... so was it someone else thanking me instead of paying for a vase they took home? I liked the note and the mystery.

I lock my car and I lock my house but my HONESTY EXPERIMENT has shown most people who love flowers are honest. Thank you Arcata !

TO THE RESCUE After a production company failed to make promised donation, John Mayer stepped up and made things right.

John Mayer supports local parks

Redwood National and State Parks

HUMBOLDT/DEL NORTE – Musician John Mayer recently made a $10,000 contribution to Redwood Parks Conservancy, the official non-profit partner to Redwood National and State Parks, to support its mission of protecting and preserving the world's tallest trees.

Mayer was in Crescent City in 2020 to film a Land Rover commercial in Redwood National and State Parks. When the production company that had promised a donation to the Conservancy did not follow through, Mayer came to the rescue after being asked for help in contacting them.

Instead, he gave a personal donation to the redwood parks through his charitable foundation.

Mayer also recently came to the aid of the community in Big Sky Country by asking for the public's help in response to the historic flooding that caused Yellowstone National Park to close for several weeks. Mayer shared that the community he has called home in Park County, Montana, was struggling amidst the mass cancellations of trips to the area.

Located near a park entrance, Park County depends heavily on tourism so Mayer asked that people keep their plans to visit the area and enjoy the beauty and other landmarks the area has to offer.

Redwood Parks Conservancy (RPC), is a non-profit organization that supports the educational and preservation mission at Redwood National and State Parks.

All right, title, and interest conveyed to and now held by the trustee in the hereinafter described property under and pursuant to a Deed of Trust described as:

More fully described in said Deed of Trust.

The beneficiary of the Deed of Trust has executed and delivered to the undersigned a written request to commence foreclosure, and the undersigned caused a Notice of Default and Election to Sell to be recorded in the county where the real property is located.

NOTICE OF TRUSTEE'S SALE

NOTICE TO POTENTIAL BIDDERS: If you are considering bidding on this property lien, you should understand that there are risks involved in bidding at a trustee auction. You will be bidding on a lien, not on the property itself. Placing the highest bid at a trustee auction does not automatically entitle you to free and clear ownership of the property. You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on this property.

NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER: The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. The law requires that information about trustee sale postponements be made available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale. If you wish to learn whether your sale date has been postponed, and, if applicable, the rescheduled time and date for the sale of this property, you may call (866)-960-8299 or visit this Internet Web site https://www.altisource.com/loginpage.aspx using the file number assigned to this case 2022-00486-CA. Information about postponements that are very short in duration or that occur close in time to the scheduled sale may not immediately be reflected in the telephone information or on the Internet Web site. The best way to verify postponement information is to attend the scheduled sale.

NOTICE TO TENANT: You may have a right to purchase this property after the trustee auction, if conducted after January 1, 2021, pursuant to Section 2924m of the California Civil Code. If you are an "eligible tenant buyer," you can purchase the property if you match the last and highest bid placed at the trustee auction. If you are an "eligible bidder," you may be able to purchase the property if you exceed the last and highest bid placed at the trustee auction. There are three steps to exercising this right of purchase. First, 48 hours after the date of the trustee sale, you can call (855)-976-3916, or visit this internet website https://tracker.auction.com/sb1079, using the file number assigned to this case 2022-00486-CA to find the date on which the trustee's sale was held, the amount of the last and highest bid, and the address of the trustee. Second, you must send a written notice of intent to place a bid so that the trustee receives it no more than 15 days after the trustee's sale. Third, you must submit a bid, by remitting the funds and affidavit described in Section 2924m(c) of the Civil Code, so that the trustee receives it no more than 45 days after the trustee's sale. If you think you may qualify as an "eligible tenant buyer" or "eligible bidder," you should consider contacting an attorney or appropriate real estate professional immediately for advice regarding this potential right to purchase.

DAISY ROSE AND FRIENDS

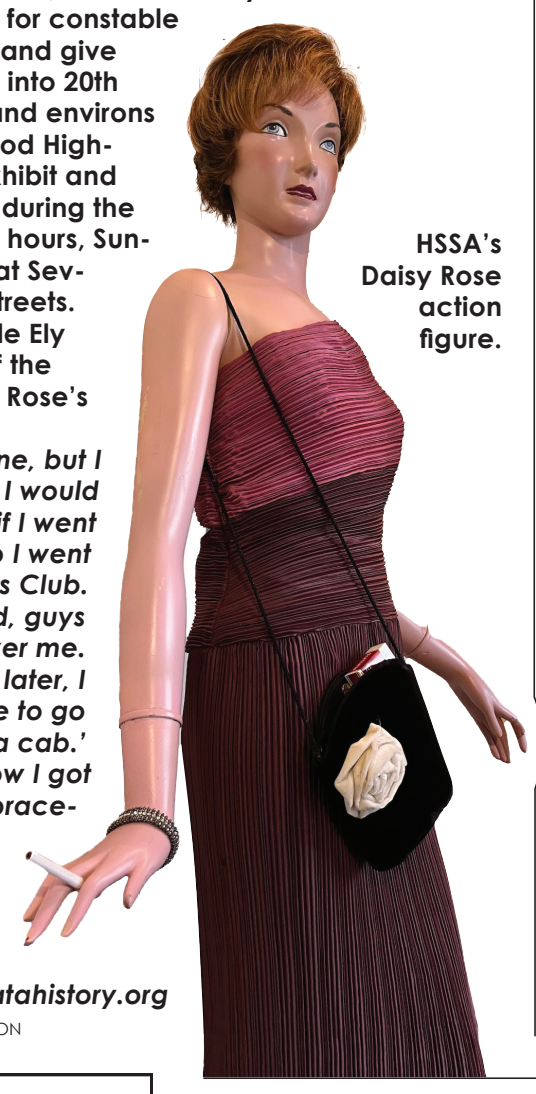

Oh, but out in the lobby, it was a different story. There, that fiery libertine hellcat, Daisy Rose, was jealously protecting the new matchbook exhibit. A shameless pageant of vice and debauch, the cabinet houses not just strong, sweet tea and a fudge brownie replica, but an ashtray populated by a partly-enjoyed "Fortuna"-brand smoke, and the star of the show, the matchbook collection. The trove of packs o' matches, found in a basement, were issued by local businesses and a candidate for constable back in the day, and give a smoky glimpse into 20th Century Arcata and environs along the Redwood Highway. View the exhibit and meet Daisy Rose during the museum's public hours, Sundays 2 to 4 p.m. at Seventh and Union streets. Meanwhile, Karole Ely provides some of the unsinkable Daisy Rose's backstory:

"My red hair is fine, but I thought maybe I would get more action if I went out as Cher. So I went down to Everett's Club. Lo and behold, guys were all over me. Two martinis later, I thought, 'Time to go home in a cab.' But that's not how I got that diamond bracelet. That's another story. Stay tuned. Love, Daisy Rose"

SANCTUARY FOREST

LOST COAST – Join Sanctuary Forest on Saturday, July 30 for the Beauty of the Lost Coast Hike: Needle Rock to Bear Harbor, led by John and Susie Jennings.

Participants will be treated to spectacular views of the rugged coastline, abundant wildlife and plants, and stories about the history of Bear Harbor and the Sinkyone Wilderness. It is 6 miles round-trip, beginning at the Needle Rock Visitors Center in the Sinkyone Wilderness State Park.

RSVPs are especially recommended for this hike, as hike details and dates are subject to change due to a possible road closure. A 4-wheel drive vehicle is also recommended for this hike–only private carpooling will be permitted (i.e., between members of the same household or group). Meet at the Sanctuary Forest office in Whitethorn at 9 a.m., the hike will end at Needle Rock at 4 p.m. Bring lunch, plenty of water, dress in layers and wear sturdy hiking shoes.

The hike is listed as rigorous due to length and a series of rolling and steep hills; however, the trail is wide and in fairly good shape. This hike is free of charge, though donations are gladly accepted and help Sanctuary Forest to offer this program year after year.

For questions or to RSVP, email anna@sanctuaryforest.org or call (707) 986-1087 x 9#.

FOUNDING MOTHERS A large group of staff and supporters celebrated the 25th anniversary of the Breast and Gyn Health Project last Saturday with music, food and stories. Right, Founding Mothers Jenifer Pace, Julie Ohnemus and Melinda Wilson. "Really, the only 'Founding Mother' is Julie Ohnemus," Pace said. Dr. Ohnemus invited other "Founding Mothers" to the stage and read the names of those who were not there or who have since passed away. Dr. Ellen Mahoney and Dr. Luther Cobb also spoke. Mahoney shared that the power of interruption and simplicity were great lessons in her life. "I'm the human pinball and I don't know where the flipper will send me each day," she said.
